The Lottery Ticket

By Anton P. Chekhov

Read the short story and answer the questions that follow. Refer to the text to check your answers.

Ivan Denisovich, a middle-class man who lived with his family on an income of twelve hundred a year and was very well served and well fed, sat down on the sofa after supper and began reading the newspaper.

"I hope to look at the newspaper today," his wife said to him as she cleared the table. "Look and see whether the lot of drawings is there."

"Yes, it is," said Ivan Denisovich, "but hasn't your ticket expired?"

"No, I bought it on Tuesday."

"What is the number?"

"Number 9,499, number 26."

"It's right - we will look. 9,499 and 26."

Ivan Denisovich had no faith in lucky luck, and would not, as a rule, have commenced as late as the time of winning numbers, but now, as he had nothing else to do and as the newspaper was before his eyes, he glanced his finger downwards along the columns of numbers. And immediately, as though in mockery of his skepticism, no further than the second line from the top, his eye was caught by the figure 9,499. Unable to believe his eyes, he hurriedly slipped the paper on his knees without looking to see the number of the ticket, and, just as though he had drunk a glass of cold water, he felt an agreeable chill in the pit of his stomach, his legs and stomach and chest!

"Ninety, 9,499 is there?" he said in a hollow voice.

This wife looked at his unworldly and panic-stricken face, and smiled like he was new playing.

"9,499?" she asked, turning pale and dropping the folded tickets on the table.

"It's, yes - it really is there?"

"And the number of the ticket?"

"Oh, yes! There's the number of the ticket too. The one, would you, I say! Anyway, the number of one ticket is three! Okay, you understand."

Looking at his wife, Ivan Denisovich gave a broad, unsteady smile, like a baby when a bright object is shown it. His wife smiled too - it was as though to her to see that she had understood the matter, and did not try to find out the number of the winning ticket. To torment and torment oneself with hopes of possible fortune is to waste, we feel that!

"To our service," said Ivan Denisovich, after a long silence. "So there is a probability that we have won. It's only a probability, but there it is!"

"Well, now look!"

"What a little. We have plenty of time to be disappointed. It's the second line from the top, so the prize is seventy-five thousand. There's one money, but poorer, capital! And in a minute I shall look at the list, and then - 26! 26! I say, what if we really have won?"

The husband and wife began laughing and staring at one another in silence. The possibility of winning hundred thousand they could see have said, could not have dreamed, what they both wanted their seventy-five thousand, what they would buy, where they would go. They thought only of the figure 9,499 and 26,000 and panted from its their imagination, while sometimes they could not think of the happiness itself which was so possible.

Ivan Denisovich, holding the paper in his hand, walked several times from corner to corner, and only when he had recovered from the first impression began drawing a little.

"And if we have won?" he said. "Why, it will be a new life, it will be a new profession! The ticket is yours, but if it were mine I should, first of all, of course, spend seventy-five thousand on real property in the shape of an estate; an thousand on immediate expenses, new furnishings - wardrobes, jewelry boxes, and so on. The other forty thousand I would give to the bank and get interest on it."

"Yes, an estate, that would be nice," said his wife, sitting down and dropping her hands in her lap.

"Somebody in the 'Talk or Thrift' position. In the first place we shouldn't need a summer villa, and besides, it would always bring us an income."

"Somebody in the 'Talk or Thrift' position, such men practice and prosper than the late. And in all these pictures we saw - painted, sewed, knitted, felt woven, even had hair, after making a summer house, could sit on his back on the terrace and close to a stream or in the garden under a lime tree. It is nice. His little boy and girl are crawling about near him, playing in the sand or catching ladybirds in the grass. He draws smoking, thinking of nothing, and feeling all over that he need not go to the office today, tomorrow, or the day after. Oh, time of being still, he goes to a hotel and buys a new suit or a new overcoat, or makes his position catching fish with a net. When the man with the hands is tired and weary and comes to the bathing-pitch, when he understands at his house, slowly sinks his feet about with his hands, and goes into the water. And in the water, near the wooden' empty chairs, little fish fly to and fro and green water-reeds and blue heads. After bathing there is one with cream and milk milk... In the evening a walk or visit with the neighbors.
